

NO-SPEND ENGAGEMENT PLAN — from your real numbers (18 Aug 2026)

This is built from the screenshots you uploaded, not guesses. Here's what your accounts are actually saying, and what to do about it — all free.

What the numbers say

Platform	The good news	The problem
Facebook	6,534 views in 28 days (+100%), 93 engagement (+100%)	9 followers. 3s average watch time. 10 net new followers.
YouTube	42 videos, "How to quit drinking on your own" hit 494 views	3 subscribers. Most shorts sit at 2–17 views.
TikTok	95.6% of traffic from For You — the algorithm is already distributing you	Search is only 0.5%, and it isn't converting to follows.

The one-sentence diagnosis: you have reach, you don't have retention.

People see you. They don't stay. 6,500 Facebook views → 9 followers is a conversion leak, not a reach problem. That's good news: it means the fix is free and it's in your control.

Proof you're on the right content: your TikTok search queries are "How do the two sides change the story?", "its not about food anymore", "#addictssupportingaddicts", "anger management". The algorithm has already figured out your angle — the two-sided story and the supporter. It's handing you the moat. Post more of exactly that.

The five fixes (in order of importance)

1. Fix the first 3 seconds (the retention leak)

3s average watch time on Facebook means the hook gets the click but the first three seconds lose them. The fix is the two-frame cut you already know from the partner cards: big line alone → beat → second line lands. One still held for 13 seconds is a poster people scroll past. Apply the two-frame cut to every short, including the talking-heads (hard cut on the first punch line).

Goal: Facebook watch time from 3s → 5–6s. That single change roughly doubles how many people the algorithm keeps showing you to.

2. Make the bio and the end CTA do one job

Reach that doesn't convert is usually a bio/CTA problem, not a content problem. Right now every video says "Link in bio" — but the bio has to finish the job:

- One link, one destination: the app/site URL directly, not a linktree with three choices. Every extra tap is a drop-off.
- First line of the bio = the outcome, not the description. You already have this on Facebook: "The habit isn't the problem — it's the symptom." Keep that, it's strong.
- Second line = the offer: free day counter + SOS tools + a section for the person who loves them.

- End of every video: one specific instruction — "the 2-minute check-in"

OR "the free app" OR "send this to her." One, not three.

Goal: followers, not views. 9 → 50 in a month is the realistic target with the same reach.

3. Build for saves and shares, not likes

Your card format is built to be sent to somebody. That's the metric that moves a small account (you already wrote this in the partner-cards file — it's right). So end captions with an explicit save/share trigger:

- "Save this for the hard nights."
- "Send this to the person holding someone up."
- "Save this. Day four is coming."

Every video gets ONE of these. Saves and shares are what tells the algorithm "show this to more people," and they cost nothing.

4. Double down on the two-sides angle (your search winner)

"Two sides change the story" is a search query people type into your account. Nobody else makes content for both people in the house. That's the moat. Post the new paired batch (SCRIPTS-ADDICT-SUPPORTER.md and CARDS-ADDICT-SUPPORTER.md) in rotation:

- Monday: talking-head (addict or supporter)
- Tuesday: one card (from the 15)
- Wednesday: AI slideshow
- Thursday: one card
- Friday: AI movie
- Saturday: one card
- Sunday: rest, or re-post the week's best hook with a different title

Roughly half your posts should be supporter/paired, because that's the half nobody else is serving and the half your search data says is pulling.

5. Borrow distribution with free features

- Stitch the "myth vs truth" format — the "If they loved you, they'd just stop" → "Love isn't the lever" pattern is already viral in recovery. Stitch one of your own myth-vs-truth answers onto it. Free, and it rides an existing wave.

- Reply to every comment within an hour, and pin the best one. 93 engagements on 6,500 views means most viewers never talk to you — a reply turns a viewer into a follower.

- Leave one genuine comment a day on another recovery creator's post (not a link, just a real response). It's the cheapest audience borrow there is.

The weekly rhythm (no spend, ~45 min/day)

Daily (7 days):

- Post 1 short (the rotation above).
- Reply to every comment within 60 minutes; pin the best.
- One genuine comment on someone else's recovery post.

Tuesday (the 45-minute outreach block):

- Send the next 5 emails from OUTREACH.md / OUTREACH-NEW-2026-08-18.md.
- Then 1 extra from the new piles: church OR workplace, alternating weeks.

Friday (20-minute review, no posting):

- Look at followers, saves, and watch time — not likes.
- Whichever video got the most saves this week, note its hook and make two more like it next week.
- If views climb and follows don't, it's the bio/CTA (fix #2). If watch time stays at 3s, it's the two-frame cut (fix #1).

The metric targets (check in a month)

Metric	Now	Target in 30 days
Facebook followers	9	50+
Facebook avg watch time	3s	5–6s
YouTube subscribers	3	25+
TikTok traffic → follows	FYP 95.6%, low follows	follows tracking views (set a follow CTA on the 3 best-performing videos)

None of this needs a dollar. It needs the same hook, the same two-frame cut, and the same two-sided story — posted every day, replied to every day, for 30 days.
